Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 10 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Windy with spells of rain.

Today:
Often wet and windy through Wednesday with spells of rain pushing across all areas with some heavy bursts at times. Winds will be strong throughout the day and it will feel cool, especially in the east. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Tonight:
Heavy rain will persist during the evening, clearing after midnight to leave a very windy night with scattered showers. Gales may develop in places through the early hours. Minimum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Thursday:
A very windy start to the day with gales in places and further heavy, blustery showers. Winds will ease slightly leaving a day of sunshine and heavy showers. Feeling chilly. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Staying windy on Friday with sunshine and heavy, blustery showers. Perhaps some heavier rain on Saturday with a further risk of gales. Mainly dry and bright on Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.